OUR GANG. ✓

3 Our gang is a typical group of youngsters both wealthy and poor, -- the poor of course outnumbering the wealthy. The pampered son decked - ala Lord Faunt LeRoy, hates with all his boyish ardor his niche in society which wealth has created for him and he yearns to be like other kids.

Opportunity comes quicker than he expects, when a number of the poor element, with a philanthropic turn of mind endeavor to add one of their own people who in trade (she owns a grocery store) has fallen upon real waste. The juvenile efforts to aid her together with the antics of cleverly trained dogs ^{an} chickens and geese and almost human pony and donkey, add considerable in the plots which re-establish the financial status of the poor grocery woman. Incidentally, the son of the wealthy neighbor has gone a radical change and sees in his poor playmates much that is to be admired. All in all, our gang amuses and also reveals the moral - "DO UNTO OTHERS" etc. which is the rule that helps both poor and rich alike.
